

Institut Schiller

« la plus parfaite de toutes les oeuvres d'art
est l'édification d'une vraie liberté politique »

Friedrich Schiller

“The most perfect of all works of art is the establishment of a true political freedom.”

REBUILDING THE WORLD IN THE BRICS ERA

SCHILLER INSTITUTE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Paris, June 13-14, 2015

SATURDAY JUNE 13

- 08.30 – 09.00 Registration
- 09.15 – 09.30 Musical introduction
- 09.30 – 10.30 KEYNOTE SPEECH
By a Schiller Institute representative.
- 10.30 – 10.45 Dialogue with the audience (Q&A)
- 10.45 – 12.00 PANEL I
THE NEW SILK ROAD AND THE BRICS: A NEW PARADIGM FOR CIVILIZATION
Representatives from India, China, Russia, Brazil, South Africa and Iran.
All speakers hold government or institutional positions, and some have participated in the BRICS negotiation process. All will speak in a personal capacity.
- 12.00 – 12.45 Dialogue with the audience
- 12.45 – 14.15 Lunch break
- 14.15 – 14.30 Musical introduction
- 14.30 – 15.45 PANEL II
ERADICATING THE GEOPOLITICS OF WAR BY PURSUING THE COMMON AIMS OF MANKIND
Security experts from Russia, Austria, India and France.
These experts, all of whom are competent in military affairs, understand that only mutual development among peoples can secure peace in Europe and beyond. All will speak in a personal capacity.
- 15.45 – 16.15 Dialogue with the audience
- 16.15 – 17.00 PANEL III
GREAT INFRASTRUCTURE PROGRAMS ARE THE ONLY TRUE ALTERNATIVE
Development experts and institutional officials from Egypt, Chad, India.
All the speakers have been personally involved in the design, feasibility and development of international infrastructure programs.
- 17.00 – 17.45 Dialogue with the audience
- 17.45 – 19.30 Break
- 19.30 – 21.00 MUSICAL EVENING

SUNDAY JUNE 14

- 09.15 End of Registration
- 09.30 – 09.45 Musical introduction
- 09.45 – 10.00 Messages to the conference
- 10.00 – 10.45 KEYNOTE SPEECH FOR THE DAY
- 10.45 – 12.00 PANEL IV
PUBLIC CREDIT AND DEBT CANCELLATION, THE POLITICAL CHALLENGE FOR EUROPE
Economists and policymakers from Greece, Germany and France.
These speakers are aware that European nations must join the BRICS dynamic, bringing with them the best of their respective cultures and historical achievements to expand the scope. The crucial issue is to put an end to monetarism and establish a credit system both nationally and internationally to finance great infrastructure projects.
- 12.00 – 13.00 Dialogue with the audience
- 13.00 – 14.30 Lunch break
- 14.30 – 14.45 Musical introduction
- 14.45 – 16.15 PANEL V
A SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL RENAISSANCE IS THE KEY TO OUR FUTURE
Scientists from Germany, France and the LaRouche scientific research “basement” team.
Countering the hypocrisy and the unrealistic vision of the Paris World Climate Summit (COP21), the speakers will develop the real reasons for climate change and how human beings need to master the dynamics involved for their mutual benefit, starting from an overall solar and galactic perspective.
- 16.15 – 17.00 Dialogue with the audience, Q&A
- 17.00 FINAL CONCLUSION
Conclusion by a representative of the Schiller Institute on the necessity of “détente, entente et cooperation” among peoples, nations and regions of the world in order to launch a new human adventure beyond popular perception.

Institut Schiller

« la plus parfaite de toutes les oeuvres d'art
est l'édification d'une vraie liberté politique »

Friedrich Schiller

“The most perfect of all works of art is the establishment of a true political freedom.”

Rebuilding the World in the BRICS Era

International Schiller Institute Conference

June 13-14, 2015, Paris, France

There are crucial moments in history when a Renaissance is needed to rescue mankind.

Today, the BRICS countries (Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa), are committed to launching one. They have founded the New Development Bank (NDB), an Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), and various other funds to finance the economic belt of a “New Silk Road,”, both terrestrial and maritime, promoted by the Chinese government. They are setting up a Contingent Reserve Arrangement (CRA) to protect their currencies and preparing a new, international economic and financial order in which the yuan will be a driving force. Finally, they are organizing a universal rating agency as an alternative to the three major Western agencies.

Their great projects are based on the transformation of man and nature, on an ambitious space exploration policy, a policy of public health-care for all, and the creation of smart cities, together with planting “great green walls” to green the deserts. Over the last thirty years, China has lifted over 1,35 billion people out of poverty, and India is now doing the same for 1,25 billion.

This is clearly where the alternative lies to a trans-Atlantic Empire whose financial oligarchy sows the seeds of war, just as storm clouds bring the storm.

Our conference will be the venue to mobilize forces for this alternative, which rejects destructive geopolitical power games and puts us at the forefront of the fight for the common aims of mankind. It will thus mark another decisive step following on the conferences held by the Schiller Institute in Frankfurt on October 18-19, 2014 and those held in Manhattan since the beginning of the year. It is in fact an international mobilization that you will be attending, not a one-time gathering of whistle-blowers.

First, we will hear from representatives of the BRICS and their allies, who will present the great projects they plan or are already implementing in their countries. This is not a sum of different projects, but constitutes a worldview very different from that which has dominated in Europe for over forty years.

Members of Lyndon LaRouche’s science team will present the new approach needed to overcome the drought devastating California, by managing and creating water cycles through organizing salt water desalinization, and working on the promising perspectives offered by atmospheric ionization to create new, more efficient cycles.

The Chinese program of mining helium-3 on the Moon as fuel for thermonuclear fusion energy production on Earth, exemplifies a new identity for man, extended to the scale of the solar system, and beyond that, to the scale of the galaxy, in order to understand and to master the effects of cosmic radiation on our climate, as well as the danger of asteroids for our planet.

To those who object that such a way of thinking is “unpractical," it is high time to respond that their practicality leads to a war of all against all.

It is precisely on that account that we need to rethink the current conception of "economics". Real economics is not about carrying out financial looting operations in order to build up rapid monetary wealth, but rather bringing together the means to fund those great projects that will shape our future.

Therefore, we need to bring nations together around a policy of public credit to finance discoveries and development platforms. Dismantling the existing monetary system in Western Europe and the United States is not an economic issue as such, but a political choice: do we want a future or not? Do we want to escape from a world in which fascists and neo-Nazis such as Dmytro Yarosh are promoted in Ukraine under the sponsorship of Victoria Nuland? Do we want to join the "win-win" system repeatedly proposed by Chinese President Xi Jinping?

Answering "yes" to these questions requires leaving the Europe of the euro and of NATO, which serves the system of the City and Wall Street, and setting up forms of cooperation among sovereign states which share their capabilities and projects, and break free of their monetary and financial shackles. It means returning to a culture of the future, inspired by the works of Nicholas of Cusa, Johannes Kepler and Vladimir Vernadsky, which once again awakens in us hope and optimism, as we share in the creative processes of the human mind.

At the same time, we, as Europeans and Americans, must no longer fear that other cultures will challenge us, but rather gladly discover how we can share in the creation of the world land-bridge.

This is not a never-never land, but a coming together to meet the demands of the India of the Vedas, the China of Confucius and our Judeo-Christian tradition, to create the foundations of what Victor Hugo called the "Universal Republic."

The conference is sponsored by the Institut Schiller, 101 rue Mouffetard, 75005 Paris.